MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: The General Mark Clark Task Force

1. In an off-the-cuff discussion Colonel Miller indicated interest in the organization of the Office of the Director of Central Intelligence. He reminded  that he would like some written material on this point.

2. Colonel Miller also asked the point blank question, "Who is the Executive Officer for CIA?" He added, "At first, I thought it was the Deputy Director (Administration) but now I'm confused on this point." I replied in effect that each of the Deputy Directors was the Executive Officer for their particular areas and that to a certain extent General Cabell was the overall Executive.

3. Colonel Miller also inquired as to who could give him information concerning the DCI's personal confidential fund - explaining that he assumed the DCI had such a fund to cover personal expenses necessarily incurred in carrying out the responsibilities of his office. I replied that I did not know whether the Director actually had any such fund - pointing out that all of the Confidential Funds of the Agency were readily available to the Director for essential purposes.

4. Colonel Miller cogitated for a moment, murmured something about the extreme vulnerability of any government official with respect to the necessary expenditures of government funds for seemingly personal expenditures; he then indicated that he probably should get information on this point from the Comptroller.
